

Clinical trials that reflect our communities.

Nationwide reach with a neighborhood focus.

For too many people, hope seems unreachable. Walgreens is closing that gap by bringing better clinical trial opportunities to communities across the U.S., helping our partners increase awareness of trials to a broader consumer base, improve diversity, expand access for recruitment, and reduce the burden of participation. Together, we're improving outcomes and relevance of medical products, with convenience and compassion, right in their neighborhood. With Walgreens, hope is well within reach.

Community presence, patient access, and consumer trust—all within reach.

Walgreens is on a mission to expand access to clinical trials as a care option for individuals. Building on a foundation of trust, we can tackle underrepresentation of diverse patient populations while enabling efficiency and reliability of trial outcomes. By engaging our consumer base and communities we already serve across the country, we can uniquely address the lack of diversity in clinical trials.

Why Walgreens?

Community access

- ~80% of the US population lives within 5 miles of a Walgreens
- 51% of those locations are in socially vulnerable areas

Walgreens unlocks access to care and can engage, educate and enroll individuals who are often uninsured, living in healthcare deserts, or currently underserved by traditional health models. Walgreens can engage and enroll populations often underrepresented in clinical trials.

Unparalleled insights

Using data such as point-of-care pharmacy information, clinical site proximity, demographics, and contact preference, we develop patient cohorts for recruitment and build a real-world evidence (RWE) engine for future market access and healthcare initiatives.

Our diverse foundation of real-world data (RWD) allows us to tap into communities that are largely excluded by traditional methods of clinical trial recruitment and conduct.

Industry, healthcare relationships

Walgreens has been cultivating patient, community, and industry relationships for over 100 years, building the clinical expertise, infrastructure, and trust required to conduct clinical trial operations on a nationwide scale.

Together, we're bringing more than clinical trials to communities—we're delivering hope.
